

Fido's Dog Blog 2

Hello everyone! Now I've completed eight weeks of my probation, I thought I'd better update my blog.

I LOVE being your school dog. It's true what the humans say; every day is a school day and I learn something every time I come. I like learning new people's smells; every one of you smells different to me. I'm not very good at names but I can remember smells. I particularly like Tuesdays when my friend Kymmie comes to listen to children read. Kymmie is SOOOO well behaved she puts me to shame but we both get a treat so that's OK. I like getting involved in all the things you do too. Christmas jumper day was fun; everyone looked so festive. The best part was Christmas dinner – Miss Hayley saved me a whole sausage!

This is me in my Christmas jumper. Cosy!

My favourite time of day at school is lunchtime. The smells wafting from Miss Hayley's kitchen are amazing! I'm not allowed in there when everyone is eating which is SO unfair! But, I do get to go out and play. I've discovered the best children to play with are Year 6. They can throw my ball the furthest, which is fun, but even better, they try to get there before me. No chance! Exercise is really important for staying healthy. When I get home from school, I get to go for a walk for an hour with my doggy friends. This is me using my sniffing super power.

And this is me looking cute on a bench!
